In March 2005, a jury found Gaines guilty on all 18 counts charged in the Second Superseding Indictment, which included five counts of Armed Bank Robbery, one count of Bank Robbery, one count of Armed Credit Union Robbery, one count of Credit Union Robbery, two counts of Interference with Commerce by Robbery (see Hobbs Act, 18 U.S.C. § 1951), and eight counts of Using a Firearm During and in Relation to a Crime of Violence (see 18 U.S.C. § 924(c)), which corresponded to the six armed robberies and two Hobbs Act robberies. See Verdict (CR03-496, docket no. 84); Second Superseding Indictment (CR03-496, docket no. 35). In July 2005, pursuant to the then-applicable version of 18 U.S.C. § 924(c)(1)(C), as interpreted by the United States Supreme Court, see Deal v. United States, 508 U.S. 129 (1993), Gaines was sentenced to seven years in prison on the first firearm enhancement and 25 years on each of the other seven firearm enhancements, to be served consecutively, for a total of 182 years, to run consecutively to the time he had already served (595 days), which was the term imposed as to all ten robbery offenses combined. See Judgment (CR03-496, docket no. 94). Gaines has now been incarcerated for over 17 years, which is approximately 19½ years in custody, considering good-time credit. He is currently 56 years of age.

In 2018, as part of the First Step Act, Congress amended 18 U.S.C. § 924(c)(1)(C). See United States v. McCoy, 981 F.3d 271, 274 (4th Cir. 2020). Under the revised language, the 25-year mandatory minimums would not apply to Gaines because, at the time he committed the offenses at issue, he had not previously been convicted of violating 18 U.S.C. § 924(c). See id. at 275 (observing that the 25-year enhancement is "reserved for recidivist offenders, and no longer applies to multiple § 924(c) convictions obtained in a single prosecution" (quoting United States v. Jordan, 952 F.3d 160, 171 (4th Cir. 2020)). The statutory modification was not, however, explicitly made retroactive, see Jordan, 952 F.3d at 174, and Gaines seeks the benefit of the legislative change via his motion under § 3582(c)(1)(A)(i). Gaines also challenges, pursuant to § 2255, the legal basis for his convictions under § 924(c), arguing that neither armed bank robbery nor Hobbs Act robbery constitute the requisite "crime of violence" to serve as a predicate for the firearm enhancements at issue. The Government opposes both motions.

Discussion

A. Motion to Reduce Sentence

A sentence is generally considered final and may not be altered except in limited circumstances. See 18 U.S.C. § 3582(b); see also Dillon v. United States, 560 U.S. 817, 824 (2010). Prior to 2018, a modification for reasons other than a post-conviction lowering of the applicable sentencing range could be made only upon a motion brought by the Director of the Bureau of Prisons ("BOP"). See United States v. Gunn, 980 F.3d 1178, 1179 (7th Cir. 2020). Pursuant to the First Step Act, a defendant may now directly request a reduction in the term of incarceration, provided that all administrative remedies have been exhausted. See 18 U.S.C. § 3582(c)(1)(A); see also United States v. Brooker,

¹ On August 14, 2020, Gaines submitted a written request to the warden at the United States Penitentiary in Pollock, Louisiana, asking for a reduction in sentence based on "extraordinary or compelling circumstances." Ex. 1 to Mot. (docket no. 132-1); see also Gaines Decl. at ¶ 1 (docket no. 142). The warden received Gaines's request on August 17, 2020, but did not respond

976 F.3d 228, 233 (2d Cir. 2020). To obtain relief, a defendant must meet two criteria: (i) "extraordinary and compelling reasons" warrant a reduction in his or her sentence; and 3 (ii) the reduction is consistent with applicable policy statements issued by the United States Sentencing Commission. 18 U.S.C. § 3582(c)(1)(A). In modifying any sentence, 4 5 the Court must consider the applicable factors set forth in 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a). Id. 6 Congress has not defined "extraordinary and compelling reasons," but rather delegated that task to the Sentencing Commission. See 28 U.S.C. § 994(t); see Brooker, 8 976 F.3d at 232. In 2006, the Sentencing Commission promulgated United States Sentencing Guideline ("USSG") § 1B1.13, the application notes of which describe three 10 categories of potentially "extraordinary and compelling reasons," namely medical 11 condition, age, and family circumstances, see USSG § 1B1.13 cmt. n.1(A)–(C), and a "catch-all" provision, id. cmt. n.1(D), which "opens the door" to considering factors other 12 13 than those specifically enumerated, see United States v. McPherson, 454 F. Supp. 3d 14 1049, 1053 (W.D. Wash. 2020). USSG § 1B1.13 has not been updated since the passage 15 of the First Step Act, and every Circuit to address the issue has concluded that the 16 Sentencing Commission's policy statement applies only when a § 3582(c)(1)(A) motion 17 18 until September 17, 2020, see Ex. to Gaines Decl. (docket no. 142 at 2), which was one day past 19 the 30-day period that Gaines was required to wait before filing his pending motion to reduce sentence. See 18 U.S.C. § 3582(c)(1)(A). Gaines has initiated an administrative appeal of the 20 warden's decision, but the record contains no indication that such process has been completed. See Ex. to Gaines Decl. (docket no. 142 at 3); see also United States v. Blinks, No. 17-CR-0248, 2020 WL 5366728, at *2 (E.D. Cal. Sep. 8, 2020) (describing BOP's Administrative Remedy 21 Procedure). The Government, however, has not disputed that Gaines has exhausted his administrative remedies, and the Court concludes that it has jurisdiction to hear Gaines's

§ 3582(c)(1)(A) motion.

is brought by the BOP. See McCoy, 981 F.3d at 281-84; Gunn, 980 F.3d at 1180-81; United States v. Jones, 980 F.3d 1098 (6th Cir. 2020); Brooker, 976 F.3d at 235-36. 3 Thus, for purposes of Gaines's motion to reduce sentence, USSG § 1B1.13 neither limits this Court's discretion with respect to what constitutes "extraordinary and compelling 5 reasons" nor serves as an "applicable policy statement" against which the pending request 6 must be measured. See, e.g., Jones, 908 F.3d at 1111 ("In cases where incarcerated persons file motions for compassionate release, federal judges may skip step two of the 8 § 3582(c)(1)(A) inquiry and have full discretion to define 'extraordinary and compelling' 9 without consulting the policy statement § 1B1.13."). The Court concludes that both (i) the "draconian" nature of the now obsolete 10 11 jurisprudence concerning the "stacking" of mandatory minimums, see United States v. 12 Quinn, 467 F. Supp. 3d 824, 827 (N.D. Cal. 2020), and (ii) the substantial disparity 13 between Gaines's sentence and the prison terms that similarly-situated defendants would 14 receive under the current version of § 924(c), constitute "extraordinary and compelling 15 reasons" justifying a reduction in sentence. See McCoy, 981 F.3d at 285-86; United 16 States v. Clausen, No. 00-291-2, 2020 WL 4260795 (E.D. Penn. July 24, 2020); United 17 States v. Young, 458 F. Supp. 3d 838 (M.D. Tenn. 2020); United States v. Haynes, 456 F. Supp. 3d 496 (E.D.N.Y. 2020); United States v. Maumau, No. 08-cr-00758, 2020 WL 18 19 806121 (D. Utah Feb. 18, 2020); United States v. Urkevich, No. 03CR37, 2019 WL 20 6037391 (D. Neb. Nov. 14, 2019); see also United States v. Lott, No. 95cr72, 2020 WL 21 3058093 (S.D. Cal. June 8, 2020); United States v. Arey, 461 F. Supp. 3d 343 (W.D. Va. 22 2020). Moreover, Congress's decision not to give automatic retroactive effect to its amendment of § 924(c)(1)(C) does not preclude relief; the "safety valve" offered by § 3582(c)(1)(A) allows for sentence reductions on a case-by-case basis. See McCoy, 981 F.3d at 286-87.

In providing Gaines a remedy under § 3582(c)(1)(A), the Court is not required to immediately release him, but rather may adjust his sentence downward, resulting in his continued incarceration for some period of time. See Maumau, 2020 WL 806121 at *8; see Lott, 2020 WL 3058093 at *3 (reducing sentence from 240 to 192 months); Arey, 461 F. Supp. 3d at 352 (eliminating the "stacking" § 924(c) sentences, resulting in a decrease from 895 to 390 months). As has been the practice of other courts, see Clausen, 2020 WL 4260795 at *9; Young, 458 F. Supp. 3d at 850; Maumau, 2020 WL 806121 at *8, the Court SCHEDULES a hearing for February 4, 2021, at 10:00 a.m., at which the parties may present their arguments regarding the appropriate sentence reduction, considering the relevant § 3553(a) factors. The virtual hearing will be conducted via ZoomGov.com. Counsel shall meet and confer and jointly make the necessary arrangements with BOP for Gaines to participate via videoconference. The link for the ZoomGov.com session will be provided via email. Sentencing memoranda shall be filed by January 29, 2021.

B. Motion to Vacate, Set Aside, or Correct Sentence

In light of the Court's ruling on Gaines's § 3582(c)(1)(A) motion, the Court need not address Gaines's request for this Court to call for a re-examination of the decision in Deal. See Supp. Memo. at 2-6 (C17-264, docket no. 24). With respect to the separate issues of whether armed bank robbery and/or Hobbs Act robbery are crimes of violence for purposes of the firearm enhancements imposed under § 924(c), Gaines acknowledges

1	that the Ninth Circuit has decided the questions adversely to him. See id. at 2 (citing
2	United States v. Dominguez, 954 F.3d 1251 (9th Cir. 2020), and United States v. Watson
3	881 F.3d 782 (9th Cir. 2018)). For the present time, the Court is bound by these
4	opinions, and therefore DENIES Gaines's § 2255 motion. This ruling is, however,
5	without prejudice to renewing the § 2255 motion if the United States Supreme Court
6	grants a writ of certiorari in Lamont Kortez Gaines v. United States , Case No. 20-294.
7	Conclusion
8	For the foregoing reasons, the Court ORDERS:
9	(1) Gaines's § 3582(c)(1)(A) motion to reduce sentence (CR03-496, docket
10	no. 132) is GRANTED in part and DEFERRED in part. The Court concludes that
11	"extraordinary and compelling reasons" warrant a reduction in Gaines's sentence and
12	SETS a virtual hearing for February 4, 2021 , at 10:00 a.m. , to determine the appropriat
13	term of imprisonment in light of the relevant factors set forth in § 3553(a).
14	(2) Gaines's § 2255 motion (C17-264, docket no. 1) is STRICKEN in part as
15	moot and DENIED in part, but without prejudice to renewing the motion if a writ of
16	certiorari is granted in Supreme Court Case No. 20-294.
17	(3) The Clerk is directed to send a copy of this Order to all counsel of record.
18	IT IS SO ORDERED.
19	Dated this 23rd day of December, 2020.
